DISPATCH FROM THE MISSOURI DELEGATION.
The following dispatch from the Missouri delegation was read by the Chairman:

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 24, 1866.

Gentlemen of the Soldiers and Sailors' Convention, Pittsburgh:

UNBROKEN: We, the undersigned, delegates of Missouri, being unable to attend on account of the impudently concocted and baseless charge of complicity in the late raid, do hereby assure you that you are our warm and most warmest supporters and we assure that you may adopt sustaining the loyal Congress of the nation. But we would as you go further. We want to fight the political battle that is now being to mount on a platform that at least gives to all an opportunity to be white or black. The right to the ballot. We ask this of you justice to the minority of the palest colored soldiers who went down in death at Pilow, Wagner, Marshall, and on a hundred other hard contested fields in order that the nation might live. Revs. & fully, &c. H. C. BRADSHAW.

ANJOURNMENT.

THE GRAND TORCHLIGHT PARADE.

Special Dispatch to the N. Y. Tribune.
PITTSBURGH—Midnight—Tuesday, Sept. 23, 1865.
The procession and illuminations were the grand features to-night and they were highly successful. The various delegations formed on the streets leading to Water-st. and fell in line in succession on the street, marching through Smithfield-st. and thence through the principal streets of the city, amid the blaze of red and blue lights, or rockets, Roman candles, &c. Most of the houses along the route were illuminated and decorated with flags, and colored lanterns were universal throughout the chief thoroughfares. As the column stretched along Water-st., the fireworks lighting up the wondrous darkness that hung over the old Monongahela, and the mountains beyond, produced startling effect heightened still more by a stream of light from the torches of a delegation crossing the bridge at the foot of Smithfield at the top of a range of hills across the river, stood a house brilliantly illuminated from roof to floor. The shipping along the river banks was daily decorated with flags and illuminated with Chinese lanterns and everywhere the procession was greeted enthusiastically by a populace not so blasé in these matters as our New-York citizens. The windows along the route were alive with waving handkerchiefs and smiling faces. Chinese lanterns and waving flags spanned the streets, and festooned the buildings. All along, and from hotels, newspaper offices, &c., gas-jets welcomed the "bobs in blue," and gave utterance to the loyal sentiments of this the most loyal city of the loyal West. Chief Marshal Major-Gen. James S. Negley, with the National Executive Committee from Washington, D. C., in carriages, led the van. Then a mounted escort, comprising Finley Delegation, Capt. Peter Nelson 500 strong, followed by the Undine Boat Club, who were represented by a large number of men dressed as sailors in a long-boat on wheels, drawn by six horses, carrying a banner "we all pull together;" first division delegations from a distance, under command of Gen. A. L. Pearson; Wisconsin delegation, Gen. Thomas A. Jen, carrying their trained eagle, Old Abe; Kansas delegation under command of Gen. Thomas Moonlight, with transparencies inscribed "Radical Kansas begun the war in 1855, and proposes to fight it out," "The Moses of Kansas is the Sharp rifle," Maryland and other State delegations in carriages; Westmoreland deleation, Col. William B. Coulter, with a banner on which was, "The Westmoreland boys, who don't draw their rations from Cowan;" also, "One thousand dollars for a Southern loyalist who supports My Policy, and one thousand dollars for the Rebel who indorses Congress;" Brownsville township, Fayette County, Capt. W. H. Davis; Beaver County delegation, Col. M. R. Adams; Nith and XVIIIth Congressional Districts of Ohio; West Virginia delegation with banner, "30,000 loyal soldiers will rise 12,000 majority against my policy."

The second division was composed of the First, Second, Third and Fourth Waris, followed by the Temperanceville delegation, which consisted of an immense cavalcade of horsemen. Among other inscriptions were "We stand by Congress," "We vote as we shot, and we will shoot as we vote," "Traitors have no rights but the right to hang," "We will make treason odious on the 9th of October."

The Third and Tenth Ward "Boys in Blue" displayed the following: "The white man's candidate—Clymer did not think the boys in blue were fit to vote in 1893. Gen. Geary, the hero of sixty battles, will let the good work go on. "Clymer is a Dead Duck." "We are Coming by Main Force." "Congress, the Nation's Safeguard." The Second Ward Boys in Blue turned out in uniform. They were followed by Monongahela Borough High School, "The Congress of Our Nation." And Johnson, Superior

The firemen were largely represented in the ranks, accompanied by fire steam fire engines, hose carts, and Hook and Ladder apparatus, &c. Other mottoes were: "Everything for Security, Nothing for Revenge." "Clymer is a Copperhead, and the Soldier who votes for him will disgrace himself and the flag he fought for (Grant)." "Andy likes Brandy."

A noticeable feature was a carriage containing a number of young ladies dressed in white, each wearing on her brow a silverlet bearing the name of a State. There were in line the following additional delegations:

During the evening while the procession was in motion addresses were made from the balcony of the Monongahela House by Gen. Geary, Gen. Farnsworth of Illinois, and Gen. Sigel, and later, at various points, speeches were being made to the never-extinguished multitude.
